Educational Article

We came up with new ideas which may interest you. Probably you and your child feel anxious as a new school year approaches. To dial down the level of fear and psychological discomfort one may practice a mindful approach to their lives both inside and outside classroom doors. Check this off-standard topic in our new article to see that mindfulness is far more than just meditation and find practical strategies on how being mindful may increase the academic progress of your child:

Kids Academy Weekly Contest Is Over

We hope you spent a wonderful time with the Talented and Gifted app completing various activities and scoring up bonus stars that you can spend on Eddie's new garments. Here are the results of the contest. They are divided into weekly winners and children who have won several nominations during the whole event. As well, you may find the results of the Week 12 Contest. Look there to see whether your young learner shines by their achievements among others:
