WHITE DAY

For those of you who have snow outside introducing color white to kids is a piece of cake! There are plenty of outdoor activities you can organize on a snowy day: make snow angels, a snowman or a snow caterpillar around your house, build a snow fort and have a snowball fight with the whole family, or play snow tic-tac-toe. You can do most of these activities with snow only. Families that have special equipment can go sledding, skiing, skating or snowshoeing.

If you have a zoo nearby, it might be a good idea to go there and show your kids a white bear, a white owl, a swan, a baby seal, and other white species you can find there.

At home, one of the activities to teach color white could be cooking together. Your list of white ingredients may have milk, eggs, flour, sugar, and salt. It's a perfect combination for cooking crepes! Your meal would only benefit if you add a scoop of vanilla ice cream on top!

We hope you'll enjoy your white day full of exciting activities and delicious treats!
